

AutoZone Announces Officer Changes

August 4, 2000

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 4 /PRNewswire/ -- John C. Adams Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of AutoZone, Inc. (NYSE: AZO), today announced the following promotions and other management changes.

Billy Edwards, 37, previously senior product manager and Scott Webb, 37, previously director of e-commerce, were both promoted to vice president, merchandising, pending board approval. They report to Tim Vargo, president and chief operating officer. The promotions are part of a reassignment in responsibilities after David Wilhite, senior vice president, merchandising, left the company to pursue other interests.

Bill Graves, 40, previously regional distribution center manager, was promoted to vice president, supply chain, pending board approval. He reports to Mike Longo, senior vice president, distribution.

Additionally, Gene Auerbach, senior vice president, international, has decided to leave the company to join Estee Lauder. Joe Fabiano, senior vice president, human resources, will take on additional responsibility for international. Joe has extensive international experience, primarily in Central and South America.
